Canadian Thanksgiving

Since 1957, the second Monday of October each year, in Canada, is a statutory holiday: Thanksgiving Day. This year, Thanksgiving is on Monday, October 10th.

Why do we celebrate Thanksgiving? It is similar to the holiday in the United States as a recognition of harvest and celebrating the autumn season but historically, it was a day for giving thanks for keeping the explorers safe as they navigated the new world.

Today, Thanksgiving is celebrated with meals amongst friends and family and has remained a day to be thankful and enjoy the harvest season.

In recognition of the statutory holiday, the university will be closed Monday, October 10th. There will be no classes.

Student Advising

We are into our fourth week of fall term and it is almost time to think about next term!

Level 4 students, please email the advisor with your academic plans for when you finish our program. Contact Lynn at uslc.advisor@usask.ca.
